Our recycled leather (also called ECO leather) is made 100 % from South American vegetable dyed natural leather, with no color added to the leather.

The leather comes from cows that are feeding on grass and are free-ranging on open grasslands.

The waste material used for making the recycled leather, we get from the making of other leather products, all made from this South American leather. The waste pieces are then crushed and re-used - just adding water and around 6 to 8 % of natural latex to remake a new leather "hide/board"

The production of making this recycled leather is made only on top grade Italian machines.

After the leather board is made, a coating is then added on top of the leather to prevent dirt and grease to stick to the surface, and to make sure that maintenance is easy
